Some .Q: No Service References for Namespaces in XSLT I'm trying to get at a specific SOAP operation in a WSDL using xsl:apply-templates. In one of the generated template (I have a stylesheet describing about 25 different WSDLs), I have this in it: However, when I open the generated XSD, I see no 'get_inventory' in any of the Service References, even though it says that it is a method in the WSDL. I've tried changing the expression to be: And it still does not show up in the generated XSD... it's as though it's not even an operation. What's going on here? UPDATE: I've tried the technique in the answer below, but I'm still seeing a ServiceReference looking like this: /services/inventoryapi/19/xsd/inventoryapi.xsd While I am expecting something like this: /services/inventoryapi/19/methods/get_inventory What gives? A: I've played around with this a little more and I think I've figured it out. What is going on is that the XSD engine doesn't actually reference the fully qualified names like "get_inventory" in the WSDL it's generating; the service reference it's creating instead actually uses the element's qualified name in the WSDL, instead of the element's simple name. I didn't consider that before, because I thought the service reference should be using the element's simple name, but that's not true. So to answer my own question, the answer is that, in the styles
